~~~~~ Health & Safety ~~~~~

Researchers have concluded that Vitamin D offers benefits beyond just strengthening teeth and bones, such as increasing muscle mass and function. People as young as 40 can begin losing muscle strength if they are not getting enough Vitamin D.

Researchers have also found that Vitamin D helps metabolize cholesterol and can help ward off serious diseases such as multiple sclerosis, diabetes, and even cancer.

One of the best ways to get the proper daily amount of Vitamin D is from sunlight – using little or no sunscreen – for short durations so your skin doesn't burn. This seems to contradict warnings from medical experts about the harmful effects of the sun's rays; however, researchers have concluded that people living in cold climates, and those who use the strongest sunscreens can, over time, lower their levels of Vitamin D.

Because it is a fat-soluble vitamin, people on low-fat diets may be at risk for lowering their ability to properly absorb Vitamin D. Eating fish such as cod, snapper, salmon, and tuna, and using olive oil are good ways to ensure you are getting the correct amount of healthful fat for proper absorption.

~~~~~ Helpful Hints ~~~~~

High-definition TVs offer excellent picture quality – notably higher than their analog predecessors because they have a higher resolution. However, there are some differences in the technologies of HD TVs on the market, and you should become familiar with them before you shop:

LCD (Liquid Crystal Display) – These TVs are thin, lightweight, and wall-mountable. However, they are currently only available with screens up to 46 inches and their picture quality is slightly less than that of their plasma counterparts.

Plasma – These offer the best picture quality, offer 180° viewing, or side-viewing ability, and are also thin enough to be hung on the wall. On the down side, plasma TVs are only available with a 42-inch screen or larger.

HD Rear-Projection Microdisplay (cathode-ray tube) – These flat screens provide superb picture quality, are much cheaper than plasma TVs, but are not wall-mountable.

Finally, a note on wall-mounting your TV: be sure to use a reputable television wall-mounting kit, and remember that it is generally a job for at least two people.

If you are working with another Real Estate Professional, please disregard this notice.

Outdoor Play Is Key To Healthy Child Development

(NAPSA)-In the past, most kids spent the bulk of their play time outdoors, socializing and exercising in backyards, at playgrounds and parks. With technology advances and the ever-growing amount of cable and Internet content, children now are more likely to be found plopped in front a television or computer screen than exploring and interacting with the natural world. The contemporary child's play environment has changed dramatically and not all the effects are positive.

According to the American Association for the Child's Right to Play, playing outdoors is more than just a joy of childhood. It is essential for both the mental and physical well-being of children-outdoor active play promotes cognitive development, encourages creativity and keeps children moving. In fact, research has shown that children who actively play outdoors during early childhood have a tendency to be smarter, to score higher on tests and to exhibit more creativity.

The good news for parents-the best learning environment for children may be right in the backyard. The backyard provides a great outlet through which children can nurture creativity, develop social and cognitive skills and get physical exercise. It's a natural environment for kids to explore and isn't too far from supervision. Follow these tips to design a kid-friendly, playful yard.

Sun vs. Shade: Where does your yard receive the most sun? Play areas should be positioned where shade is available during the hottest times of day.

Specialized Play Areas: Outdoor playcenters-complete with slides, swings, climbing walls and sandboxes-are great additions to keep kids on the go. Do your research and choose equipment that is safe, easy to assemble and built to last. For something that keeps the kids active but also won't be an eyesore, you can check out Huffly's new Playcenters at www.hufflyplaycenters.com.

Gardens: Keep delicate, toxic and thorny plants away from play areas. Instead, incorporate into your yard flowers that are bright (zinnias), fragrant (lavender) and tactile (lamb's ears) so that kids can explore their unique colors, smells and unusual textures. Let older children help you pick out flowers to plant.

Water: Keep in mind that children should never be left unattended around fountains, water features, pools or spas. Drowning can occur in as little as one inch of water.

The next time your kids are mesmerized by the latest-and-greatest in technology or TV, move them outdoors to keep their healthy development on the right track.

Garage Doors Certainly are "Beasts of Burden"

Submitted by Bill Cook

One of the most ignored and overlooked maintenance components of your home is your garage door and opener. These "beasts of burden" are frequently ignored, neglected and taken for granted...that is until they stop working.

An average two-car garage door has nearly forty moving parts and weighs approximately 300 pounds. When in the up position, the door is usually 8 feet above the floor with your second most expensive investment parked directly underneath. Last year approximately 20,000 garage door related injuries were treated in America's emergency rooms.

Given these facts, proper maintenance and repair should be a higher priority on our never-ending "to do lists".

Basic routine maintenance should be performed every six months to maximize performance and extend the life of the moving parts of your garage door(s). While repairs should be left to the professionals, the following activities should be completed every six months:

Door:

1. Lubricate hinge joints with a silicone-based lubricant. Be careful in selecting a product as many common spray lubricants are alcohol-based and can actually dry out moving parts.
2. Do not lubricate track and rollers. This common misconception only serves to attract dust particles and cause further wear. While it does appear to be a short-term fix, over that short time, problems will become worse.
3. Release the door from the opener by disengaging the trolley (pull the red string down). * Raise the door to the halfway point. A properly balanced door should remain in that position. If the door falls or rises on its own this is a symptom of spring failure. Improperly balanced garage doors can cause opener and/or door damage. * Raise and lower the door manually. The door should require no more than ten pounds of force to raise. This is the maximum weight residential openers are designed to raise. Clacking, screeching or popping sounds also indicate moving parts failure. * Please Do Not attempt any repairs as certain garage door components can cause serious injury!

Opener:

1. Chain and belt drive openers should have a light coating of silicone-based lubricant sprayed on the boom (bar from the motor unit to the door) twice per year.
2. If the system has safety eye sensors (located at the bottom of the door tracks), make sure these are properly aligned and free of dust and debris. An obstruction could stop the opener from closing the door.

POWER SURGES to your home can severely damage the electronics of electric door openers. Should your opener operate erratically, DO NOT attempt to continue using it as it may damage your garage door.

It is always wiser to error on the side of caution concerning this large, heavy moving wall in your home.

When you keep your pet at home you reduce stress by maintaining a familiar, secure environment, including a consistent diet and exercise routine. The TLC your pet receives while you're away will provide you with peace of mind knowing your pet is happy and secure at "home". Pet sitters can provide additional home services while caring for your pet, such as watering plants and bringing the mail - presenting a lived in appearance as a crime deterrent.
