Literacy Workshop to Take Place at Fairbanks Branch Library

Submitted by Steve Zach

Fairbanks Branch Library seeks volunteers to help adults learn to read and write. The library will host a two-part training workshop for tutors on August 18 and 25 from 6:30 to 8:45 p.m.

The training workshop is free and there are no requirements to volunteer, other than a love of reading and two or three hours per week to help someone learn this important skill. After the training session, participants can volunteer as a tutor at any Harris County Public Library branch.

Tutors help adults gain the basic reading and writing skills necessary every day to meet such goals as advancing at work, reading to their children, and reading for personal interest. The library also provides computer and video-based programs to help adults learn basic phonics skills.

Fairbanks Branch Library is located at 7122 N. Gessner, at the intersection with West Little York. Tutoring can take place at any branch library.

For more information, to register for this workshop, or if you know of an adult who would like to improve his or her reading, please call the library at 713-466-4438.

NWYTA's Junior Team Tennis League – a $40 bargain!

Most youth in the Tomball, Cypress and Klein school districts who play on their school tennis team, attain top state and national rankings, and earn college scholarships, started playing matches in our Junior Team Tennis League. The Northwest Youth Tennis Association (NWYTA) encourages even the youngest player to develop tennis skills and good sportsmanship attitudes as a team member in this affordable league. For just $40.00, kids get six to eight weeks of matches, a T-shirt, a USTA membership or renewal, the season's end award/fun event and winners' trophies.

NWYTA welcomes youth up to 18 years old who already know how to play tennis. We do not teach tennis, but support the work of area tennis professionals by giving the youth a chance to practice what they learn in their lessons. Teams, set by age and ability, play out of their own neighborhood or local clubs against other clubs and neighborhoods. NWYTA can help you build a neighborhood team or place you on a team elsewhere. Winners at our local level could advance to regional, state and national championships.

Registration for the 2008 Fall Season closes August 29th. Play begins in mid-September, ending with playoffs and a fun awards event in November.

If your kids already know the basics of tennis, or if they are more advanced and want to sharpen their skills for school or individual tennis competition, visit www.nwyta.org to see how to register.

Channeling Sudden Death Risk

Baylor College of Medicine

HOUSTON – (June 23, 2008) – For about one-fourth of people with an inherited heart problem called long QT syndrome, the source of their problem was a mystery – until researchers at Baylor College of Medicine, the Texas Heart Institute and Texas Children's Hospital in Houston pinpointed a defect in a structural protein in a report in current edition of the journal Circulation: Arrhythmia and Electrophysiology.

A mutation in a cytoskeletal protein called alpha-1-syntrophin, one of the molecules that helps heart cells maintain their shape, changes the functioning of a tiny pore called a sodium ion channel, resulting in long QT syndrome in at least a portion of these patients, said Dr. Matteo Vatta, assistant professor of pediatrics - cardiology at BCM and associate director of pediatric cardiac research. Vatta is senior author of the report.

Until now, defects in genes for particular ion channels have been blamed for inherited long QT syndrome, said Vatta. However, experts could identify no defects in about 25 percent of people with the problem.

Ions are charged chemicals such as sodium or potassium that flow in and out of pores called channels in the cell membranes. The channels open and close in a specific sequence, letting the chemicals in and out of cell in a manner that prompts them to beat in synchrony. When the cells can beat in unison, the heart pumps blood. If the ion channels are defective, it affects the beating of the cells and the heart – often with devastating effects. Untreated long QT syndrome can cause the heart to stop suddenly.

"The mutation in this kind of protein called alpha-1-syntrophin is the first associated with long QT syndrome," said Vatta. Previously, he and colleagues had identified a link between long QT syndrome and a defect in caveolin-3, a scaffolding protein.

"I am interested in the connection between the structural and the electrical part of the heart," said Vatta, whose lab is based in the Feigin Center of Texas Children's. "It could have everything to do with susceptibility to arrhythmias (heart rhythm disruptions) in patients with heart disease. First, we had to prove that the structural part of the heart could be involved in electrical problems."

The caveolin-3 finding led to studies of syntrophin, a protein connected to dystrophin, which when mutated causes Duchenne and Becker muscular dystrophy as well as the X-linked form of cardiomyopathy. As people with Duchenne and Becker muscle-wasting disease age, they develop cardiomyopathy, a weakening of the heart muscle, with heart rhythm disruptions called arrhythmias. This leads to heart failure and an increased risk of sudden cardiac death (sudden heart stoppage) caused by the arrhythmias.

"Syntrophin is the bridge that connects dystrophin to the sodium channel," said Vatta. Dystrophin is critical in the binding of syntrophin to the sodium channel, he said. A mutation in syntrophin disrupts the proper functioning of the sodium channel.

That leads to an electrical problem that disrupts the normal beating of the heart, he said. The finding is proof of the concept that patients with mutations in the structural part of the heart muscle cells also have a problem with how the electrical system of the heart works, leading to dysrhythmias.

"Once you screen all the ion channels and do not find changes that can lead to a pathological effect such as long QT syndrome, then you have to think about all the proteins that interact with the ion channels," Vatta said.

Others who took part in this study include Geru Wu, Tomohiko Ai, Yutao Xi, Shahrzad Abbasi, Kaveh Samani and Jie Cheng, all of the Texas Heart Institute/St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital in Houston; Jeffrey J. Kim, Bhagyalaxmi Mohapatra, Zhaohui Li, Enkhsaikhan Purevjav and Jeffrey A. Towbin, all of BCM and Texas Children's; Michael J. Ackerman of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota, and Ming Qi and Arthur J. Moss of the University of Rochester Medical Center in New York.

Support for this work came from the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute and the National Institute of Child and Health Development, the Roderick D.
