Aeration Now Can Help Your Spring and Summer Irrigation

In order to prepare your lawn for a healthy spring growing season, you should employ basic lawn care practices at this time of year, which includes aerating your yard. It is important that nutrients reach the soil beneath your grass, and aeration can help you get that done.

Aeration involves making small holes in the soil to allow air, water and nutrients to get to the grass roots.

This helps the roots grow deeper and produce a stronger, more vibrant lawn.

Aerating helps alleviate soil compaction. Compacted soils have too many solid particles in a space, which prevents proper circulation of air, water and nutrients within the soil. Excess lawn thatch or heavy organic debris buried under the grass surface can also starve the roots from these essential elements.

So when is the right time to get this aeration done? These next six to eight weeks leading up to the spring season, when grass begins to grow again, is a good time to aerate.

The two main aeration tools are the spike aerator and a plug aerator. The spike aerator poke holes in the ground with a solid piece of metal. Plug aerators remove a core or plug of grass and soil from the lawn. Most landscaping companies and horticulturists recommend the use of the plug aerator. The machines can be rented or you can have a lawn care service aerate for you. After aerating, it's always a good idea to apply about a half-inch of compost over the aerated yard. The compost fills in the holes left by the plug aerator and brings organic materials into the root zone.

If you have noticed that your turfgrass isn't looking its best or that water has difficulty penetrating through the soil surface, it may be time to aerate your lawn. Lawns with clay soils that get a lot of foot traffic typically require aeration more often as they become compacted over time. Here's a great tip to check to see if your yard needs to be aerated.

Using a shovel, dig a square-foot section of grass about six inches deep and take a look at it. If the grass roots don't extend further than two inches deep into the soil, your lawn would benefit from aeration.

If you plan to aerate your own yard, here are a few helpful tips to get the job done.

- Before you get started, make sure the soil is moist enough. There's nothing more frustrating than trying to aerate soil that is bone dry. Aerating the day after a rain shower or watering your lawn the day before is advised.

- Most aeration machines cover only a small percentage of soil surface per pass, so make multiple passes over the most compacted areas. Save resources (and your energy) by leaving unaffected areas alone.

- The soil plugs can be left on the ground after aeration and allowed to decompose. Or, you can rake them into piles to throw in the compost bin. However, this isn't necessary as it should take about two to four weeks for the soil cores to break down naturally. Sprinkle compost (sand or peat moss can be used instead of compost) over the lawn to fill in the holes.

- An aeration myth is that if you apply a pre-emergent herbicide on your lawn in the spring, aerating your lawn will destroy the herbicide "barrier." This is not true — research shows that aeration will not affect crabgrass control or weed prevention.

After aerating, it's important to continue appropriate lawn care practices.

Aerating will help you save water over the spring and summer seasons. Instead of running off or only penetrating a few inches, water will be better absorbed in an aerated yard. That makes your entire landscape and your water bill happier.

Did you know...

According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, outdoor water use varies greatly depending upon geographic location. In dry climates such as that in the Trinity Glen Rose District, a household's outdoor water use can be as high as 60 percent. Some experts estimate that as much as 50% of that irrigation water is wasted due to inefficient watering techniques, wind and evaporation.

St. Aidan's Hosts Ashes To Go

Ash Wednesday is around the corner, and the folks at St. Aidan's Episcopal Church are gearing up for their second annual Ashes to Go event.

"Last year was the first time we held Ashes to Go, and we had such a tremendous response," said the Rev. Les Carpenter, rector at St. Aidan's. "We had more than 160 people come through our drive-through prayer station, wanting to have ashes imposed on them and receive prayer. That's a visitor every six minutes. It was amazing.

"We had people come from all over our CyFair area. We even had some stop by in the morning and tell their friends about us, who showed up later in the day."

In addition to offering the Ashes to Go, St. Aidan's will host two traditional services, one at 6 a.m. and one at 7 p.m.

"We invite everyone in the community to visit us on Ash Wednesday, March 6," Carpenter said. "We will have prayer volunteers in our parking lot from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Twelve hours straight ... welcome to Lent.

"We also will be giving away our Lent in a Bag, which is designed to help families dive deeper into reflection during the Lenten season."

Ash Wednesday marks the start of Lent, which is the 46 days before Easter. "Church-goers receive ashes on their forehead in the shape of a cross, as a reminder that we came from ashes and to ashes we will return," Carpenter said. "Lent is designed to be a period of reflection and renewal and return to God, leading up to Easter, where we celebration the Resurrection of Christ."

St. Aidan's is located at 13131 Fry Road, Cypress, Texas. For more information, please contact the church office or visit us at www.aidanschurch.org.
