What you should know about the Houston and Briarhills housing market.

By Maria Galiotos- 9/3/2020

The combined strength in the high-end and mid-range markets pulled average and median pricing up to historic levels in the Houston area. The average price climbed 8.5 percent to $338,350. Year-to-date sales are now 2.7 percent ahead of 2019's record pace.

Continued pent-up housing demand stemming from coronavirus-related stay-at-home directives in the spring led to a second straight month of surging sales in July that pushed the Houston housing market ahead of 2019's record pace. Single-family home sales, total property sales and total dollar volume all rose compared to July 2019. Pending sales shot up 33.9 percent. However, total active listings, or the total number of available properties, fell 19.4 percent, which mean there is a big need for more homes to go on the market for sale.

Days on Market (DOM), or the number of days it took the average home to sell, edged up from 51 to 56. Inventory registered a 3.0-months supply compared to 4.2 months a year earlier and is below the current national inventory level of 4.0 months recently reported by NAR.

Where does Briarhills stand compared to the total Houston housing market?

Average List Price: $346,359

Average Sold Price: $331,482

Average Days on Market: 105

Average Rent Price: $2,368
